

Pileated Woodpeckers

are the biggest woodpeckers in the world. They have bright red heads and black and white bodies. When large old trees are cut down, Pileated Woodpeckers have trouble finding a place to build their nests. The holes they make in trees are used by other animals such as ducks, owls, flying squirrels and martens.