

You can now recycle over 76 new items.

Styrofoam? Yep, bring it down. Aluminum foil and pie plates? Of course. How about my kids' zippered snack pouches? Don't throw them out, we'd be happy to recycle them. We want to reduce the amount of waste that gets stuffed back into the Earth and increase the number of items that we can recycle into new products that benefit the global community.

Save your tax dollars.

The way your tax dollars are spent is very important to you, and we love that. We are always searching to find new ways to save them wisely. Recycle BC is a not-for-profit organization responsible for residential packaging and paper product recycling throughout British Columbia. Recycle BC is funded by producers, like retailers and manufacturers that supply packaging and paper product to BC residents, keeping the costs away from homeowners. By adopting the Recycle BC program, the Regional District of East Kootenay is compensated per tonne directly from Recycle BC. Our yellow bin system is paid for by the tonne through the Regional District's solid waste budget.

What about all those yellow bins?

You will indeed still see the yellow bins hanging around, especially if you live in a rural area. They still have a purpose in life and aren't all getting sent out to pasture. When recycling at a yellow bin, please follow the guidelines posted on that bin. Since we don't have access to the same markets through our yellow bin system, you will need to use the Recycle BC Depot at the Columbia Valley Landfill in order to access these new recycling opportunities.

When & where?

The Recycle BC Depot at the Columbia Valley Landfill will open June 13, 2019 with plans to open Recycle BC Depots at other staffed RDEK Transfer Stations later in the year.

A new way to recycle is coming to the Valley.

And it's going to save you money.
